Protection Spells

Greetings!

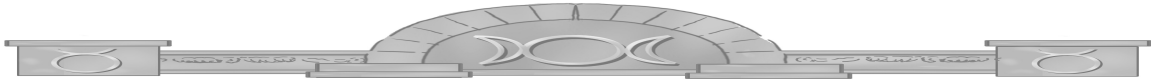

When human beings first began to appear in this world, nature was the most formidable force that they had to encounter. Without much protection from the rain, wind, earthquakes or other forces of nature, they lived in fear of nature's "wrath". There was no way to appease the great forces of nature but to adapt to them, allow them to take their toll and move on with our lives.

However, there was another threat, a very subtle one, which instilled fear in the minds of the earlier human inhabitants on earth. This was an invisible threat, one that didn't have form or substance. It came in the guise of angry spirits that intended to harm them or their families. Sometimes these spirits manifested as mysterious events in their lives. These negative forces interfered with the peaceful harmony that many desired. The wise ones found ways to block this negative force, to keep it at bay, and to release a human being from its clutches by using protection spells.

In the present world these threats may materialize as strange illnesses, hatred, conflict, death, etc., that may leave us perplexed and without much hope of a bright and happy future. To protect us from negative influences that undermine our efforts to live a positive life, we can create protection spells for ourselves and our loved ones.

There are many types of protection spells. Protection from evil eye, black magic, illnesses, harm to crops, harmful spirits, hex-breaking spells. Anyone can use spells to protect themselves, their family, children, animals, home, business, property, wealth, love, happiness, prosperity, anger, sorrow or death.

To make our lives a success, it is imperative that we are surrounded by positive energy at all times. Negative energy drains our body's resources and decreases our chances of finding lasting happiness.

The first procedure witches perform in preparation for a ritual is the ceremony intended to cast a circle. This circle encases the positive energies we call upon to stay within our sacred space and allows us to conduct the ritual and cast the spell more effectively. This circle also keeps the evil or negative energies away from us and prevents them from foiling our attempts.

While performing any ritual, it is a good idea to visualize being encased by a circle or oval of protection during the time you invoke the deities and request their guidance in completing your spells and rituals. Usually, we visualize ourselves cocooned in three layers of protection, where each layer appears as a purple egg shaped structure around us and our sacred space.

From ancient times, talismans, amulets and charms were used to protect against nightmares and ward off the "evil eye", demonic or malefic spirits, personal calamity and black magic. Some of these amulets had geometric diagrams or mystical formulae inscribed on them and some were usually in the shape of lizards, chameleon or scorpions. Herbs that were used to exorcise haunted cattle or banish sickness and evil included sage, malaxis, christianwort, and heliotrope.

The sacred pentacle is used to consecrate ritual objects, charms or tools. It is also used for grounding stray energy in a room and as an instrument of protection. Pentagrams are worn as pendants or hung over doors and windows to serve as protective elements. Certain gemstones such as hematite, tourmaline, black jasper, black onyx, obsidian, amethyst, calcite, etc. were also used in charms, amulets and other jewelry to protect the wearer.

Here is a protection ritual for the modern times:

Before you do any spell, you can use this method to build a wall of protection around you:

Imagine yourself sitting in the middle of a huge pentagram facing upwards. Visualize three spheres of purple light around you. The first one encases you and your aura in its cocoon very close to your body offering the first layer of protection. The second one is larger and encloses the first one in a second layer of protection and the third likewise encircles you, and the first two spheres making it impossible to penetrate any of these layers. Imagine yourself completely enclosed in this impermeable shield which protects you from all outside interference.

Now meditate in that glowing protective state and chant:

Thrice around the circles bound

Sink all evil into the ground!

(repeat the above three times)

So Mote it be!

Now you are free to conduct your spell in an area clear of negative energies.
After you have completed the spell, thank the Deities and open the circle.

Blessed Be!
